Welcome to

KESPER

a family company for generations

The company F. ANTON KESPER, founded in 1902, has a very close relation to the natural material wood.

Our extensive assortment comprises household goods, baskets, small furniture, kitchen trolleys, storage boxes and coat hangers. Space for 20,000 palette storing positions assure a high reliability of supply.

Our company philosophy is to preserve resources and to use them carefully. All articles of our „Wood collection“ originate exclusively from controlled European forestry (FSC certified wood), from Asian natural rubber plantations or from sustainable cultivated woods.

As trend-setter we have been using bamboo in many products for years – also with FSC certification. Our products are made without tropical deforestation.

We are a member of amfori, the worldwide leading federation of enterprises for open and sustainable trading. Together with amfori BSCI we improve the social sustainability of our supply chains.

WOOD AND BAMBOO PRODUCTS WITH FSC CERTIFICATION FROM EXEMPLARILY CULTIVATED WOODS

Wooden products are awarded with the trademark FSC when they come from exemplarily cultivated forests or plantations. The forest cultivation is based on the strict environmental protection amendments of the „Forest Stewardship Council“ and also factors in the high social and economical standards. The certified forestries have undergone an independent control and evaluation which proves the conformity of the subsistence strategy with the FSC standards. The FSC is a non-profit international organisation where environmental associations, social organisations, advanced forestries and wood processing enterprises work together to reach the aim of an improvement of forest cultivation and environment.

For more information see www.fsc.org.

Bamboo cutting boards

The bamboo blade (bot. „Phyllostachys heterocycla var. pubescens“) is due to its speed of growth one of the best renewable resources! There are more than a thousand different bamboo species worldwide. Especially in Asia bamboo has an ecological, economical and cultural meaning.

We mostly use the botanic bamboo called Bambusa vulgaris. The huge grass lignifies and is therefore a good material for our cutting boards, kitchen products and furniture. In reference to hardness and resistibility bamboo is comparable to many hardwoods.

Our oiled cutting boards are impregnated with a food safe oil.

This decreases the intrusion of dampness, makes the cutting boards more resistant and lowers the risk of early contamination.

All our bamboo cutting boards are FSC certified and originate from exemplarily cultivated woods.

Acacia cutting boards

Worldwide grow many different species of acacia. We process exclusively acacia wood from South East Asia, such as Thailand and Vietnam. The wood colour reaches from dark brown to white. The acacia wood (bot. Acacia hybrid mangium x auriculif) is especially resistant to dampness and almost without deformation. This is the reason that acacia wood is especially suitable for cutting boards in commercial use with high demand.

Our cutting boards are impregnated with a food safe oil. This decreases the risk of the intrusion of dampness and makes the boards more resistant and saves them from early contamination.

All acacia cutting boards are FSC certified and originate from exemplarily cultivated woods.

Mango wood products

Mango is being cultivated in many parts of Asia. Not only because of its tasty fruit but also because of its wood it is of big interest. Specially big specimen reach a height of 45 m with a crown which spans about 30 m. During its lifetime it develops a distinctive root system which reaches up to 8 m into the ground. This makes the mango very resistant against negative external environmental factors.

Only when the mango carries hardly any more fruits the wood is being used for the manufacture of our household goods which allows a sustainable cultivation of the fields. The mango wood is particularly durable and solid and it has a nice and even surface feel. The unique wood texture makes our products exceptionally aesthetic.

Teak products

The teak tree (lat. Tectona grandis) is originated in the monsoon woods of Southeast Asia and is one of the most common and worthy woods. It has already been a very treasured material for furniture and household goods a long time ago. It stands out for its branch-free high trunk and after about 20 years lifespan it reaches its maximum height of 35 to 40 meters.

Teak wood is thanks to its high resistance against fungus and insects assigned to the European norm DIN EN 350-2 of the durability class 1. That feature is given by its high percentage of nature rubber (about 5% by weight) which makes the wood water-repellent by nature and highly resistant.

Teak wood products are particularly abrasion-proof and steady and are therefore very durable and solid. Thus the material is ideal for the manufacture of sustainable household goods.

All our teak products are made of FSC certified wood.

Olive wood products

The olive tree (bot. „olea europaea“) is a medium-sized and when old often knotty tree. It grows as an extremely branched evergreen tree and reaches a height from 10 up to 20 meters. The olive tree needs time to grow but it becomes several hundred years old. Olive trees are only released when they don't carry anymore fruits.

The wood of the olive is very hard, extremely durable and almost distortion-free. It is ideal for the production of cutting boards and wooden spoons. The cutting boards are because of its special patterning a real eye-catcher!

This decreases the intrusion of dampness, makes the cutting boards more resistant and lowers the risk of early contamination.

MORE IS MORE
CUTTING BOARDS FOR ANY OCCASION!

Beech cutting boards

The common beech (bot. „Fagus sylvatica“) is a local broadleaf tree widely spread in Europe. The distribution area reaches from South Scandinavia to Sicily.

A height of up to 30 m and a trunk diameter of more than 1 m aren't rare. After 80 to 120 years the trees are processed in the wood industry.

The wood is very hard and therefore ideal for the processing of kitchen articles like cutting boards or wooden spoons.

In our selection we have beech boards made of untreated wood – the nature-identical surface gives the board a natural look.

This decreases the intrusion of dampness, makes the cutting boards more resistant and lowers the risk of early contamination.

All beech cutting boards are FSC certified and originate from sustainable cultivated woods..

The eye-catcher on every BUFFET

Buffet platters of slate

Solid slate blocks are split and axed by hand until the size of the plate is as desired. The untreated or sharpened edge gives the slate plates a high-quality and natural look.

The slate plates are coated and therefore very scratch-resistant.

Whether to use as a buffet plate or a place setting – the slate plates always make for an especially decorative ambience. The plates are easy to clean and don't absorb any dampness. Slate absorbs the cold perfectly and cools down your food. Ideal for serving and decorating your meals – an eye-catcher for every buffet. Non-slip stands guarantee a firm hold and protect the table from scratches.

Wood slice serving board

Cut from one piece. Regarding our wood slice serving boards we take care of a careful processing of the alder so it keeps as much as possible of its original form. The untreated edge gives every board a specific characteristic. Even the form and size vary from one piece to another which makes every serving board unique. It's easy to serve meat, cheese and raw fruit and vegetables vividly and to create a nice view on every buffet. It only takes water and a bit washing up liquid to clean all arrears on the board. We only use wood for the processing that measures up to our high standards.

Ideal for FISH & sensitive food

Glass cutting boards

Ideal for preparing sensitive food like fish or poultry.

Glass is particularly hygienic, has a pore-free surface and is neutral in odour and taste. All our cutting boards are made of ESG glass, which is almost unbreakable during normal and functional use.

The graphic films are placed beneath the glass, so the films remain protected.

Wicker is made of natural grown raw materials and very flexible before processing. Willow is a good material for weaving baskets and very versatile. Thanks to high elasticity baskets can be created in many variations.

Olive wood

The olive tree (bot. „olea europaea“) is a medium-sized and when old often knotty tree. It grows as an extremely branched evergreen tree and reaches a height from 10 up to 20 m. The olive tree needs time to grow but it becomes several hundred years old. Olive trees are only released when they don't carry anymore fruits. The wood of the olive is very hard, extremely durable and almost distortion-free. It is ideal for the production of cutting boards and wooden spoons. The cutting boards are because of its special patterning a real eye-catcher!

- Source Mediterranean region e.g. Greece, Italy, Spain
- extremely hard
- particularly lively grain

Beech wood

The common beech (bot. „Fagus sylvaticus“) is a local broad-leaved tree widely spread in Europe. The distribution area reaches from South Scandinavia to Sicily. A height of up to 30 m and a trunk diameter of more than 1 m aren't rare. After 80 to 120 years the trees are processed in the wood industry. The wood is very hard and therefore ideal for the processing of kitchen articles such as cutting boards or wooden spoons. The center is light, has little patterning and an even surface. The red-brown splint is wildly textured. Almost all KESPER beech wood products are from FSC certified wood.

- Source Europe e.g. Germany, Poland, Romania, Bulgaria
- high cut resistance
- smooth grain

Bamboo

The bamboo blade (bot. „Phyllostachys heterocycla var. pubescens“) is due to its speed of growth one of the best renewable resources! There are more than a thousand different bamboo species worldwide. Especially in Asia bamboo has an ecological, economical and cultural meaning. We mostly use the botanic bamboo called Bambusa vulgaris. The huge grass lignifies and is therefore a good material for our cutting boards, kitchen products and furniture. In reference to hardness and resistibility bamboo is comparable to many hardwoods.

- Source Asia e.g. China, Vietnam
- extremely resistant
- warm friendly shade

Pine wood

The pine (bot. Pinus sylvestris) belongs to the needle woods and is in parts of Germany and middle Europe the second most commonplace tree species after the spruce. The different pine wood species are however a worldwide occurring tree species. Pine trees grow mostly straight, ponderous and with a cylindrical trunk in forest stand. The pine is a less demanding on the environment fast growing tree. Furniture manufacture is the prime area of application for pine wood. Pine wood can be easily worked and is very elastic and therefore does not break easily. All KESPER pine wood products are produced from FSC certified wood.

- Source Europe
e.g. Poland, Germany
- strong grain

Acacia wood

Worldwide grow many different species of acacia. We work exclusively acacia wood from South East Asia, such as Thailand and Vietnam. The wood colour reaches from dark brown to white. The acacia wood (bot. Acacia hybrid mangium x auriculif) is especially resistant to dampness and almost without deformation. This is the reason that acacia wood is especially suitable for cutting boards in commercial use with high demand. Most of KESPER acacia wood products are produced from FSC certified wood.

- Source Asia
e.g. Vietnam, Thailand, China
- very moisture-resistant
- particularly cut-resistant

Birch wood

The birch (bot. Betula pendula) is a very fast and high growing type of tree. It can grow as much as 7 meters in height in the first six years. Fully grown birch trees can reach up to 30 meters in height. Especially the brown white bark is characteristic for birch trees. This tree is quite common in middle Europe, Russia and North China. The light slightly textured wood has long fibres and is especially suitable for the production of toothpicks and also for cutting boards and other kitchen products. Most KESPER birchwood products are produced from FSC certified wood.

- Source Asia & Europe
- durable
- knife-sparing

We also have products made from the following types of woods: lotus (schima wallichii), pine (cunninghamia lanceolata), paulownia (paulownia tomentosa), eucalyptus (eucalyptus spp.), mango wood and teak.
